

Speaking of riveters, Woodrow Wilson, President of these United States, is one. Here he is driving the first rivet in the first freighter at the plant of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, Alexandria, Va. Copyright, International Film.

Forty-two thousand spectators heard 10,000 voices sing "Elijah," played by a band of 200 pieces led by Lieut. John Philip Sousa at the monster thrift festival at the Polo Grounds last Sunday. © International Film.

Scottish soldiers in the big battle, dashing past a corner which is heavily bombed. Note marks of machine gun bullets on bricks just ahead of the leading "Jock."

British Official Photo from Underwood & Underwood

Easton, Pa., honors her most distinguished son, Gen. Peyton C. March, U. S. Chief of Staff. The city gave him a sword and Lafayette College an honorary degree.

Photo by International Film.

These are just some of the shoes worn out by our soldiers in France. Those that can be repaired are picked out and fixed up for further use. The pile is 15 feet high and 30 wide. Copyright, 1918, Committee on Public Information

The Harvard crew which beat the Yale eight on the Housatonic River on June 1. It was the fifty-first rowing race between the two institutions and Harvard's twenty-sixth victory. The men didn't get much training this year because of their military duties. Copyright, International Film.